FDR and Me—and You

By Dr. Jim Haas

On the day I was born in Akron, Ohio, in the cold January of 1943, President Franklin Roosevelt was 3,990 miles away in sunny Casablanca, French Morocco, meeting with Prime Minister Winston Churchill and Allied military leaders to plan wartime strategy. FDR was unaware of my entry on the world stage, but one of his goals was to protect my path forward, and not only from the Nazis. I didn't know at the time that one of his ideas, soon to be known as the G.I. Bill, would pave my path to a satisfying public service career while another, Social Security, would help pay the costs of living while I write this. And neither Roosevelt nor I knew that seven years later I would go with my mother to hear his widow, Eleanor, speak about another of his ideas, the United Nations. Mrs. Roosevelt was the most respected woman in America in those days, and she took the stage to a standing ovation at the cavernous Akron Armory. We were seated in the balcony and the house was packed, but her speech didn't enter my long-term memory and I doubt that I understood much of it. The setting left impressions, though, including Mrs. Roosevelt's maroon dress and the bright blue UN flag behind her.

Most memories of my first three years are gone beyond recall, but a few remain like short video clips on MTV, vivid and brief as a blink. The clearest is of standing on our front porch on VJ Day watching three soldiers careening an Army Jeep along our residential street while joyously waving a big American flag and probably looking for willing young women to join their rolling party. Somehow, D-Day, Roosevelt's death, and the atomic bomb didn't register, possibly because I couldn't yet read well and news via radio didn't have the visual impact that television would soon bring.

Fast forward to the early sixties when FDR's Fair Labor Standards Act guaranteed a minimum wage in my part-time college job. After graduating, FDR still wasn't done with me. When the Air Force transferred me to Kansas, I began graduate courses at KU paid for by an updated version of Roosevelt's G.I. Bill. (The original G.I. Bill was used by six million veterans and produced 450,000 engineers, 238,000 teachers, 91,000 scientists, 67,000 doctors, 22,000 dentists, and another million graduates in other fields. Along with labor unions, it built the prosperous American Middle Class.)

My graduate degree helped me obtain my first teaching job where I found FDR's legacy again at Wyandotte High School, an architectural gem built in the mid-1930s by the Works Progress Administration (WPA), part of FDR's New Deal to provide both needed jobs and civic improvements during the Depression. Wyandotte was just one of dozens of K.C. area WPA projects. The WPA and another New Deal agency, the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC), improved national and state parks and forests with new road access, shelters, and other facilities, most still in use. The CCC also planted two billion trees, many as windbreaks to slow dust erosion on the Great Plains.

While teaching history, I earned a final degree at KU on the G.I. Bill and became a licensed school administrator. Along with millions of other veterans, the Bill also helped me buy a house on favorable terms. As I began to build a bank account, FDR's Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) guaranteed its safety in case of bank failure. It still does, for all of us.

Many of the moneyed class resented the New Deal, calling it "socialism." Of course they did, not wanting to pay for a better America or even for the welfare of their fellow citizens during hard times. FDR's New Deal was a visionary program that after nearly a century is still helping people have better lives. Good government works.

Using Native Plants in Your Landscape

The Wyandotte County Extension Master Gardeners are sponsoring Go Native! Using Native Plants in Your Landscape. Presented by Lenora Larsen, who will debunk the many myths surrounding native plants, then discuss garden design and horticultural strategies to civilize these potentially unruly plants.

Lenora Larson is a Marais des Cygnes Extension Master Gardener and member of local chapters of both the Idalia Butterfly Society and Kansas Native Plant Society. She is a proud 'science geek' with a degree in microbiology from Michigan State University, a career in molecular biology and a life-long interest in wildlife, especially the creepy and crawly. Her 2-acre garden, Long Lips Farm, exemplifies the English Estate landscape style with an emphasis on native plants, especially butterfly host plants. She is on a mission to demonstrate to other gardeners that you do not have to compromise on beauty or function when you use native plants and invite wildlife to share your garden.

This free class is open to the public. It is scheduled for Thursday, February 2, 2023, 11:30 a.m. - 1:00 p.m. and will be held in the Sunflower Room of the Wyandotte County Extension Office, 1208 North 79th Street, Kansas City KS. Questions? Call 913-299-9300.

Governor Proclaims January as Kansas Radon Action Month

TOPEKA – Governor Laura Kelly today proclaimed January as Radon Action month in Kansas. Through a partnership with the Kansas Department of Health and Environment (KDHE), Kansans are urged to protect their families by testing their homes, schools and work sites for radon to minimize long-term health risks.

“Radon is the second leading cause of lung cancer in the U.S. and the first in people who have never smoked,” said Jason Meinholdt, director, Radiation Control Program. “The only way to know if you have elevated levels of radon in your home is to test. Test. Fix. Save a life.”

Radon is a naturally occurring radioactive gas that can emanate from soil and become a health hazard when concentrated inside a home, school, business or other structure. According to the Environmental Protection Agency, it is estimated that indoor radon contributes to 21,000 lung cancer deaths in the U.S. each year. Exposure causes no immediate symptoms and often goes unrecognized until serious health complications arise.

More than one in four homes across Kansas have high radon levels. DeSoto, Eudora, Gardner Junction City, Lawrence, Manhattan, Olathe, Salina, and Topeka have building codes that require new homes to be built using radon-resistant techniques. Additionally, more counties in Kansas such as Shawnee County and Douglas County have adopted this modification to their building codes.

Inexpensive radon test kits, available at local hardware and builders' supply stores and at your Kansas county extension office, can reveal the amount of radon in any building. The only way to know if radon has entered your home or building is to test for it. Those with high levels can usually be fixed with simple and affordable venting techniques. Homeowners should talk with a certified radon contractor if high levels are detected.

A list of certified radon contractors is available by calling the Kansas Radon Hotline at (800-693-5343).

UG Black History Committee to Host Annual Celebration and Scholarship Banquet on Feb. 18

Following a two-year hiatus due to COVID, this will focus on preserving black history while providing scholarships to students

Kansas City, KS – The Unified Government (UG) Black History Committee will be hosting the 31st Annual Black History Celebration and Scholarship Banquet at Memorial Hall on Saturday, February 18. Starting at 5:30PM, the event will be an opportunity for community networking, food and drinks as well as an engaging panel on Preserving Our History.

Donations and proceeds from this event are donated through scholarships to students attending local post-secondary institutions such as the Kansas City, Kansas Community College and Donnelly College.

In addition to presenting scholarship awards, the Committee will honor and present awards to a community leader and local business.

The public is invited to attend by purchasing an individual ticket or table. The individual ticket, which includes appetizers, buffet meal and two drink tickets are $80. Table sponsorship will guarantee you a table for eight people, meal and drink tickets for your guests, and recognition in the event program as a sponsor.

Local organizations are invited to purchase a vendor booth for $50 to set-up in the lobby area of Memorial Hall during the event. Spots are limited so act now. Donations to the scholarship fund are also welcome. To purchase a ticket, sponsor a table, make a donation, or purchase a vendor booth, please visit wycokck.org/BHC today.

About the Black History Committee

Launched in 1982, the Unified Government Black History Committee is an employee-led, all-volunteer committee dedicated to hosting programming for Black History Month in Wyandotte County every year. In addition to raising thousands of dollars in scholarships for local students, the Committee has highlighted community efforts and entrepreneurship by black leaders from across the county.

For more information regarding the UG Black History Committee and the upcoming celebration and scholarship banquet, please visit our website at www.wycokck.org/BHC.

Louise Perry's latest Three Pines mystery, "A World of Curiosities" had so many twists and turns I felt like a pretzel. Ms. Perry really delves into the relationships of her characters especially - Inspector Gamache and his family and associates. Three Pines is the village where the residents have gone to get away from their past. Very interesting.

SENATE NEWS

By Sen. Pat Pettey

2023 SESSION BEGINS

The Legislature convened for its first day of session for the year on Monday, January 9th.

Committees also began meeting this week to begin reviewing proposed legislation and to hear presentations from associated agencies to inform legislators on topics related to issues the Legislature faces. This year, I am serving on the following committees:

- Education

- Public Health and Welfare
- Ways and Means

You can click on the hyperlinked committee names to access the committee pages, where you can find upcoming agendas, previous minutes, and other committee documents.

During the 2023 Session I will serve as Ranking Minority on Public Health & Welfare and Ranking minority on Ways & Means. I serve as the Whip of the Senate Democratic Caucus. For the 4th year I will be chairing the Early Learning Caucus.

All branches of government were closed Monday in observance of Martin Luther King, Jr.'s birthday. I was glad to attend the Kansas African American Affairs Commission and Governor Kelly's Annual Martin Luther King, Jr. March and Celebration on Thursday, where my friend Carolyn Wims-Campbell read the proclamation.

Daily calendars, committee and district information, and full text and summaries of bills are all available online at www.kslegislature.org. You can hear legislative proceedings in the Senate by clicking "Senate" under Audio/Video Broadcast on the home page. To watch the Senate and select committees, click here.

I am honored to serve as your Senator. My office is located in 125E. Please feel free to contact me at 785-296-7376 or pat.pettey@senate.ks.gov

THE 48TH GOVERNOR OF KANSAS: LAURA KELLY INAUGURATED

Governor Laura Kelly was sworn in for her second term on Monday. On Saturday, I joined members of our community to participate in the Kansas Day of Service in honor of the inauguration. I participated in the Kansas Day of Service at Crosslines, Inc. I brought hygiene products and helped stock shelves. Crosslines provides help to families in the WYCO in so many ways.

The ball celebrating the inauguration took place on Sunday evening. Governor Kelly and Lieutenant Governor David Toland reflected on their accomplishments over the past four years and laid out their vision for the possibilities ahead in this next term. I was honored to join them and look forward to the opportunities we have to build on their successful leadership.

Governor Kelly, Lieutenant Governor Toland, Attorney General Kris Kobach, Secretary of State Scott Schwab, Insurance Commissioner Vicki Schmidt, and State Treasurer Steven Johnson took their oaths of office on Monday afternoon, as did the new members of the State Board of Education and the newly-retained Kansas Court of Appeals judges and Kansas Supreme Court justices.

In her inaugural address, Governor Kelly provided a meditation on the Kansas spirit, which has kept our state strong through history, and how optimism, perseverance, and resilience have guided us through unprecedented challenges and brought us to new heights. During her last inauguration, the governor delivered her speech in front of three banners representing the tenets that would guide her first term: equality, education, opportunity. I know she will continue to fight for those principles in her second term, in addition to innovation, unity, and prosperity, which were the themes chosen this year.

The Governor also issued a challenge to Legislators: to follow Kansans' lead and choose kindness, cooperation, and civility, not just during times of crisis, but every day. I agree that that's what's required to do the best work for the people of Kansas, and that's how I intend to approach the work ahead.

RETIREMENTS AND NEW BEGINNINGS

Though we only had one special election for the Senate this year, we saw several changes in the body this week. During the interim, Republican Senators Gene Suellentrop from Wichita and Richard Hilderbrand from Baxter Springs announced their resignations from the Senate, as did Democratic Senator Tom Hawk from Manhattan.

On Monday, Suellentrop's replacement, Senator Chase Blasi was sworn in, alongside Senator Ron Ryckman, Sr., who was elected to complete the remainder of his term in November. Senator Blasi was previously the chief of staff to Senate President Ty Masterson.

Senator Hawk delivered his farewell address to the chamber on Tuesday, and the following day, his successor – and the newest member of the Democratic caucus – Senator Usha Reddi was sworn in. Though I will dearly miss Tom's humor and know-how, I am confident that Usha will be an excellent senator, and I'm looking forward to getting to know her in this new capacity.

Senator Hilderbrand's replacement has yet to be appointed. Statute requires that precinct committee people meet to elect a new legislator within 21 days of a resignation.

Budget Director (and Acting Secretary of Administration) Adam Proffitt announced the first budget recommendation of the Governor's second term on Thursday. It is a balanced budget that fully funds schools, incorporates responsible tax cuts for families, and maintains our state's solid fiscal foundation. Here are just a few of the highlights of this proposal:

* Axing Your Taxes: After working with the Legislature last year to pass a compromise, gradual reduction of the state sales tax on food, the Governor's budget would eliminate it completely by April 1 of this year. It would also eliminate the state sales tax on diapers and feminine hygiene products. To further help Kansas families, it adds a four-day back-to-school sales tax holiday. And it increases the exemption on Social Security income tax and smooths out the tax cliff to provide common sense tax relief for more retirees.

* Infrastructure Investments: This budget builds on Governor Kelly's legacy of fiscal responsibility by keeping the Bank of KDOT closed for the second year in a row. Furthermore, it makes $220 million available to ensure that Kansas communities receive their fair share of funding for transportation, broadband, and water infrastructure upgrades. And it ensures that the Department of Labor will be able to fully modernize the Unemployment Insurance system that had been neglected for years under the previous administration.

* Water: For the second year in a row, the Governor's budget fully funds the State Water Plan (last year was the first time it was fully funded in 15 years). It also pays down $53 million of debt on two reservoir projects at Milford and Perry Lakes, freeing up $30 million to go to other water preservation efforts.

* Physical and Mental Healthcare: The best time to expand Medicaid was last year. The next best time is now. The Governor's budget includes Medicaid expansion, which will provide the state with an estimated $370-450 million in additional federal funding over the next two years, covering the state's share of expansion for 8 years. The budget directs over $12 million to the current Medicaid program to increase service rates, help with the I/DD waiver waiting list, and encourage new capacity.

* Protecting Kansas Kids: The budget provides funding to expand the Mental Health Intervention Team Pilot Program to add 15-25 districts to the program so more Kansas students can get the mental healthcare they need. It adds over $5 million to increase placement rates for foster homes and support foster kids transitioning to adulthood. And it gives $5 million in safe & secure grants to allow schools to stock naloxone – which helps prevent fatal opioid overdoses.

* Supporting Our Students: For the fifth consecutive year, the Governor's proposed budget fully funds K-12 schools, and it puts Kansas on the path to fully fund special education. It also invests nearly $110 million in higher education, allowing Kansas schools to continue the recent trend of low-to-no tuition increases, allowing more students to access college. The budget ramps up the investment in the recently-formed Office of Registered Apprenticeships, and invests in a college internship program to encourage the next generation to stay in Kansas post-graduation.

* Housing and Childcare: The Governor's budget invests in early childhood education and care, giving local communities the ability to implement solutions tailored to their needs. It puts $20 million toward the Housing Revolving Loan Program, reserving 50% for rural Kansas with the rest of the funding targeted to ensure communities have adequate workforce housing across the state.

* State Employee Pay: Like last year's budget, the proposal increases statewide pay by 5% and provides more flexibility, with bonuses to help recruit and retain workers. Across state government, the state will work to bring employees closer to market rates to increase retention and reduce turnover. The budget also maintains the enhanced Career Progression Plan for Kansas Highway Patrol officers that was provided in last year's budget.

* Fiscal Responsibility: The Governor's budget adds $500 million to the Rainy Day Fund, putting the state's balance at the proposed $1.5 billion cap for the fund. When Governor Kelly was first elected, the Rainy Day Fund was empty. With this proposal, we'll finally be in a much better position to weather any storms that come our way.

It's a strong proposal, and I hope the Legislature will implement it.

GOVERNOR KELLY ISSUES FIRST EXECUTIVE ORDER OF 2023

During her Inaugural Address on Monday, Governor Laura Kelly set a North Star for her second term: to make Kansas the best place in America to raise a family. On Tuesday, Governor Kelly took action to reach that goal. She signed the first executive order of this term to establish a task force that will develop a roadmap for the creation of a new state, cabinet-level agency focused solely on early childhood.

Research shows that a person's earliest years shape the trajectory of the rest of their life – including their economic, academic, health, and social outcomes. Giving our kids the strongest start to life is the best possible investment we can make in Kansas's future, and this new task force will show us how we can make a bigger investment more effectively. It will include representatives from across the state, from the public, private, and philanthropic sectors, and will deliver recommendations in early 2024.

STANDING UP FOR SURVIVORS OF CHILDHOOD SEX ABUSE

At the end of his final day in office, former Attorney General Derek Schmidt released a KBI report that found over 400 victims of child sexual abuse by Catholic clergy. Senators Cindy Holscher and Usha Reddi led a press conference this week with survivors of childhood sex abuse to encourage legislative action on the statute of limitation for civil suits by victims of childhood sex crimes. They were joined by Senator Mary Ware, as well as a number of House Republicans, including Representative Mark Schreiber and Representative Bob Lewis.

FROM THE HOUSE DEMOCRATS

The House Democrats were pleased to welcome a slew of new members this week, including Reps. Brad Boyd (Olathe), Ford Carr (Wichita), Kirk Haskins (Topeka), Allison Houglund (Olathe), Angela Martinez (Wichita), Lynn Melton (KCK), Silas Miller (Wichita), Dennis Miller (Olathe), Melissa Oropeza (KCK), Marvin Robinson (KCK), and Tobias Schlingensiepen (Topeka). Members began to file bills and settled into committees.

Governor Kelly/Lt Gov. Toland Sworn Into Office

TOPEKA – Governor Laura Kelly and Lieutenant Governor David Toland were sworn into office in a ceremony outside the Kansas State Capitol. The Kelly Administration now begins its second term in office.

Governor Kelly first became the 48th governor of Kansas on January 14, 2019, pledging to rebuild Kansas by reaching across the aisle. Since then, she has worked with a bipartisan group of legislators to fully fund schools, axe the sales tax on food, close the Bank of KDOT, and recruit the largest economic development project in state history.

Governor Kelly began her second term by celebrating the Kansas spirit of “neighbor-helping-neighbor” and calling on the state’s elected leaders to embody the same civility and unity.

“We’re often told that there’s ‘a fork in the road’ and you have to

Tom’s Tasty Treats

By Tom Valverde

It’s interesting to learn about traditional foods from other countries and to then prepare them to enjoy here in the US. This week’s tasty treat comes from Norway and it’s a quick and easy take on a traditional cookie recipe, but, with a twist. These cookies are made using the powdered sugar instead of regular granulated sugar. And with this one change, they now are a blend of a sandy and an oatmeal cookie. This is a good recipe to make and freeze half of the cookies for use, up to three months later. Try a batch of tasty:

NORWEGIAN OATMEAL COOKIES

Ingredients:

- 2 c Flour
 - 1 t Baking Soda
 - 1/2 t Salt
 - 1 c Butter, softened
 - 2 c Powdered Sugar
 - 1 Lg. Egg at room temperature
 - 1/2 t Cinnamon
 - 1 1/2 t Vanilla
 - 2 c Quick Oats
 - 1 c Pecans, finely chopped
- Set oven to 325°.

Line cookie sheet with parchment paper.

In a large bowl, combine the flour, baking soda and salt. In a mixer, cream together the butter and powdered sugar. Beat in the egg, cinnamon and Vanilla. Continue until the mixture is smooth and creamy. Stir in the flour mixture. Gently fold in the oatmeal and finely chopped pecans stirring until blended. Drop by heaping teaspoon onto the lined cookie sheet. Space 2” apart. Bake at 325° for 17-20 minutes, until lightly golden brown. Let cool completely. Dust tops with powdered sugar or glaze with a mixture of 1 c powdered sugar and 1 T milk and 1/2 t Vanilla. Additional milk may be added to reach the correct consistency. Drizzle the glaze in a zig zag way that leaves some of the cookie top still showing. To vary the recipe, try adding 1/4 t almond extract in addition to the Vanilla. Top glazed cookies with additional finely chopped pecans, if you like. These cookies are great with a cold glass of milk or a cup of coffee. Norwegian oatmeal cookies are also great as a dessert to serve with a bowl of Vanilla ice cream.

Remember to treat someone who is at home alone, it will make them so happy! Your kind thoughtfulness will be appreciated.

make a choice - you can either go right or you can go left.? I believe that’s a false choice.??I believe the best choice is right down the middle of that road,” Governor Laura Kelly said. ?

“Because the middle of the road is where left and right come together; where well-intentioned people who hold different positions find common ground.? Nobody gets everything they want, everyone gets something they want, and progress is made. That’s how life works. It’s how government should work too.”

Governor Kelly also shared her vision for her second term.

“Our North Star is this: To make Kansas the best place in America to raise a family,” Governor Kelly said. “Where you can see opportunity for yourself, for your children, and for your grandchildren.”
